PROVINCE OF ZAMBALES

Boundaries and general conditions of the country as reported by the Phillipine Commission

THIS province is situated on the west coast and in the widest part of Luzon. It is bounded on the north, northwest, and west by the China Sea, on the south by the province of Bataan, and on the west by the provinces of Pangasinan, Tarlac, and Pampanga. It is 32 leagues long and 7 wide. The country is mountainous and generally covered with vegetation. The low lands are fertile and almost the only ones cultivated. The coast is not clear, on account of the many stones and rocks and the abundance of reefs and banks.

AREA AND INHABITANTS.

It has an area of 2,229 square kilometers and 87,295 registered inhabitants. The pagan inhabitants are revengeful and warlike, inhabiting the mountains. The rest of the inhabitants are almost all of the Zambal race, including those called the Igorrotes of Zambales, or the savages of Zambales.

TOWNS.

Iba, the capital town, is situated on the left band and 2½ miles from the river, which bounds it on the western side on the level plain. It has a population of 3,060, occupied principally in the cultivation of the soil, in hunting, fishing, and the raising of animals, such as cattle, carabaos, horses, and hogs. Some of the inhabitants and some of the people along the coast are occupied in the collection of amber, which is usually found along the coast. The most important towns, beginning with those of the north, are: Bolinao, with 6,200 inhabitants (the light-house and semaphore, of the first class, are situated on the cape near this town); Aliminos, near the coast of the bay of Lingayen, has 8,202 inhabitants; Bani has 4,295; Agno, 5,294; Santa Cruz, 5,319; Masinloo, 2,847; Botalan and San Felipe, 5,000; San Narciso, 7,600; San Antonio, about 4,668. In the magnificent port of Subig, one of the best in the archipelago, are situated the towns of Subig and Olonagapo. The total number of towns is 25, not counting the numerous hamlets of pagans. Besides the port of Subig there are several ports of some importance along the coast of Zambales.

LANGUAGES.

Zambal and Ilocano are spoken in the southern part, and Zambal, Ilocano, and Tagalog in the northern part. In the region of Iba and Batolan, Zambal and Pampanga are used, and in the region between Alaminos and Bolincaguin, Ilocano and Pangasinan. The Negritos speak Aeta, but have some understanding of the most common languages of the province, such as Zambal and Ilocano.

PRODUCTS, INDUSTRIES, AND WAYS OF COMMUNICATION.

Besides the products common to Luzon, the province furnishes a large quantity of building material, which is abundant in the province and would form a part of its wealth if the ways of communication were better. It produces also pitch, resins, rattan, honey, wax, and amber, which is collected along the shores. Wheat is grown, and excellent rice, in large quantities. In the mountains sweet pineapple is grown, which in quality compares well with that of Java and Singapore. So many cattle are raised that with suitable means of communication they would be sufficient to furnish meat for all of Luzon. There is no lack of mineral springs, the most notable ones being those of Iba, Dosol, Polanig, and Subig. There are mines of copper and pit coal, some of importance in Agno, and between Balincaguin and San Isidro.

Industries are few. In some towns there are wood-working industries, and in others iron mills. Ways of communication in this province are very poor, and those that exist are almost impassable during the rainy season. There is a road from Bolinao parallel to the coast as far as Moron, in the province of Bataan, passing through all of the towns which are situated near the sea as far as San Narciso, from which point it crosses the province rom northwest to southeast to Moron. This road branches at Botolan to O'Donnell, in Tarlac, and from Agno to Alaminos and Sual and San Isidro, in Pangasinan, passing through Balincaguin.

ADJACENT ISLANDS.

Within the port of Sabig, near to the entrance of the bay, is Isla Grande or Pulo Malaqui. It is of medium height, covered with trees, and surrounded by reefs and shoals. To the south of this island is a smaller one, to which it is united by a sand spit and reef. Entirely within the Bay of Subig are the Mayunga and Monti Islands. On leaving the Bay of Subig, toward the north are found the islands called Frailes, which are six rocks close together, and among them the Tabones, Lajos, and Capones Islands, where a light-house is situated, almost directly west of San Antonio. From the Capones, as far as the Bay of Masinloc, there is no island found worthy of mention. Within the bay of Masinloc is the Salvador Island, of medium height, covered with trees, and distinguishable some distance from the port; also Luan Island, near Salvador Malacaba, an island of circular form; Mataloi Island, of medium height, covered with trees and surrounded by mangroves, and the Island of Pulapir, surrounded with reefs. From the Bay of Masinloc, toward the north are found, first, Putipot; then Hermana Menor, or Macaliza, an island of about a mile in diameter, low, and covered with trees. Then Hermana Mayor, some 3 miles to the north-northwest of the Lesser Culebra Island, and the little island Raton are found respectively, to the north, one-fourth northwest, and to the east of Hermana Mayor in the Bay of Donsol. Northeast of Cape Bolinao is the little island of Silaqui. South-southeast of this is Santiago, an island surrounded by reefs and rocks; it is of about medium height. Its inhabitants are almost all united in the town of Binabalian, which looks toward the port of Bolinao. To the south of Santiago is found the well-populated island of Cabarruyan. Anda, its chief town, has a population of 3,200. The island is quite high and covered with forests. Between Santiago and Cabarruyan are several small islands of little importance, all surrounded by banks and reefs of coral. Near to the southeastern extremity of the large island of Cabarruyan is a group of small, round, high islands, covered with vegetation, called Cien Islas, Mongosmongos, and Capulupuluam. To the west of this group is Comas Island, and to the south of this Cabalitian.

PROVINCE OF PANGASINAN.

BOUNDARIES AND GENERAL CONDITIONS OF THE COUNTRY.

This province is bounded on the north by the Gulf of Langayen and the provinces of Union and Benguet, on the northeast by Nueva Viscaya, on the southeast by Tarlac and Nueva Ecija, and on the west by Zambales. The country is mountainous on the west, northeast, and east, flat toward the central and southern part, in the vicinity of the River Agno. The country generally slopes from the mountains to the sea in easy undulations, and near the coast is very low, thus giving rise to frequent floods, because, on account of the flatness of the country, the rivers during abundant rains are unable to empty themselves. The soil is fertile and favorable for the growth of all products.

AREA AND INHABITANTS.

It has an area of 2,854 square kilometers, inhabited by 302,178 people, the greater part of whom belong to the Pangasinan race. Some wandering Negritos live in the mountains which separate this province from Zambales. There are also some Ilocanos in the province, and along the boundary to the northeast and east a few Igorrotes.

TOWNS.

The capital is Langayem, with a population of 14,120. It has a fine church and a large number of well-constructed buildings. Sual, a seaport on the western coast of the bay of Langayem, has a population of 3,000; San Fabian, on the western coast of the bay, 10,200; Mangaldan, to the south of San Fabian, about 15,600; Dagupan, a seaport, 16,691; Binmaley, likewise a port, 16,100; Calasiao, to the southeast of Dagupan, 13,800; San Carlos, 23,934; Malasiqui, 10,770; Urdaneta, 16,600; Mangatarem, 11,000; Urbiztondo and Bayambang, to the south of Malasiqui, 5,278 and 14,444, respectively. There are other towns of more than 6,000 inhabitants too numerous to mention. The total number of towns is 29 and of villages 364.

LANGUAGES.

Pangasinan is generally spoken. In some towns in the north, northeast, and southeast Ilocano is spoken. The Negritos speak Aeta, but understand Pangasinan, as do the Igorrotes who trade with the inhabitants.

PRODUCTS, INDUSTRIES, AND WAYS OF COMMUNICATION.

Rice is most extensively cultivated and is harvested in abundance, notwithstanding the fact that in certain years there is a total loss of the crop in some low-lying towns on account of floods. Sugar cane, corn, tobacco, and cocoanuts are cultivated. The production of indigo, coffee, and chocolate is insignificant, although the natural conditions for the production of the first of these are superior. But few provinces have more extensive areas covered with the nipa palm than has Pangasinan, and probably not one has them in such a pitiable condition of neglect, notwithstanding the importance of this product to the native and the acknowledged danger to health which its neglect involves. This abundance of the nipa gives origin to the trade of distillation for obtaining alcohol. The industry is but small and at the present time is much neglected. Another industry which is carried on on a small scale is that of the weaving of buri, from which sleeping mats, hats, sacks, etc., are made. The delicacy of the work required in the manufacture of these articles and the firmness of texture are truly admirable. The industries which are without doubt of greatest importance are the production of rice, wines, and sugar. Commerce, wholesale and retail, is carried on by the Chinese, as in the rest of the archipelago, and this industry necessitates the employment of a large number of small boats engaged in transportation. The province of Pangasinan is rich in gum. In its forests are an abundance of woods, some of very fine quality and useful for the construction of ships, as is shown in the small boats constructed there, which, according to the best opinion, are most seaworthy. This province is not less favored by nature in the matter of minerals. Common salt is so abundant that it has given its name to the province, as "Pangasinan" signifies the place where salt is made. Gold and copper are obtained by the Igorrotes, who market these products in the towns.

The railroad from Manila to Dagupan traverses this province, passing through the important towns of Bayambang, Malasiqui, San Carlos, Calasiao, and Dagupan. Roads traverse the province in all directions and unite the towns with each other and with Nueva Ecija by way of San Quintin, with Union by way of San Fabian and Santo Tomas, with Tarlac by way of Paniqui and Bayatin, and finally with Zambales by way of Sual and Alos.

PROVINCE OF NUEVA ECIJA.

BOUNDARIES AND GENERAL CONDITIONS OF THE PROVINCE.

The province of Nueva Ecija is bounded on the north by the province of Nueva Viscaya and the district or comandancia of Principe, on the south by the provinces of Bulacan and Morong, on the east by the Pacific and the district of Infanta, and on the west by the provinces of Pampanga, Tarlac; and Pangasinan. The country is somewhat broken, and all is fertile, making it suitable to the cultivation of all kinds of products on account of the great variety of mountains and plains.

AREA AND INHABITANTS.

It has an area of 6,610 square kilometers, inhabited by 156,610 registered people. Both the civilized and pagan inhabitants are of various races. Among the former the greater part are Tagalog, especially in the southern part; toward the north and northeast there are a great many Pangasinanes and Ilocanos; in the west, a large number of Pampangos. The pagans, not registered, inhabit the central part of the heights of the Caraballo Mountains, and are Igorrotes, Balugas or Negritos, Ibilaos or Ilongotes.

TOWNS.

The head town is San Isidro, situated on the right bank of the Rio Grande de Pampanga, and has a population of 6,900; it has a good church and some well-built houses. Commencing on the north, the towns of most importance are as follows: San Quintin, near the Pangasinan boundary, with a population of 6,892; Carranglan, near the source of the Rio Grande de Pampanga, 1,000; Viningan, to the south of San Quintin, 8,502; Rosales, to the west of Viningan, 5,016; Pantabangan, to the southeast of Carranglan, 1,200; Cuyapo, to the south of Rosales, 16,325; Bongabon, on the left bank of the Rio Grande, 5,707; Talavera, to the west of Bongabong, 7,400; Cabanatuan, to the south of Talavera, near the left bank of the Rio Grande, 11,500; Aliaga, to the west of Cabanatuan, 23,890; Taen, a short distance from San Isidro, toward the northeast, 5,524; Gapan, east of San Isidro, 20,000 (the largest town of the province, famous for the excellent quality of the tobacco which is grown in the vicinity); San Antonio, west of San Isidro, 7,000; Peñaranda, northeast of Gapan, 5,600; Cabiao, toward the south, on the left bank of the Rio Grande, 8,000. There is a total of 25 towns and 118 villages. Many of the pagans who dwell in the mountains are absolutely independent, without any sort of civil control.

LANGUAGES.

In the south Tagalog is spoken; in the north and northwest Pangasinan and Ilocano; in the west Pampango and Pangasinan, although Ilocano and Tagalog are somewhat known. The pagans speak their respective languages, and only those who trade with the Christian natives understand Tagalog, or Ilocano, or Pangasinan.

PRODUCTS, INDUSTRY, COMMERCE, AND WAYS OF COMMUNICATION.

The waters diverted from the mountains form a multitude of creeks, which by themselves, and united in large rivers, such as the Coronel Grande, Chico, Managsac, etc., flood during their frequent overflows and fertilize the fields with the mud brought down by their currents. The soil is fertile and well suited to the cultivation of the best and richest products of the country. In the central part and to the south rice is raised in abundance, more than 500,000 cavanes being exported annually. This constitutes the principal product; also large quantities of corn are raised. Along the river banks tobacco is cultivated, although in less quantity than formerly, on account of the depreciation in price which the renowned tobacco of Gapan has suffered since the monopoly, although it has the highest price among the natives. Sugar cane is easily produced, and some plantations, where its cultivation is of genuine importance, are provided with steam machinery for manufacturing and refining, and with stills for the extraction of alcohol.

In the north there are some magnificent lands under irrigation, where rice is cultivated; others are suitable for chocolate and coffee, the fine quality of the latter being shown by that which is gathered in the village of Mariquit; and, finally, in the central part of the province, there are magnificent grazing lands, where the greater part of the cattle, which constitute the peculiar wealth of the province, are pastured. Along the Pacific coast hemp grows spontaneously in abundance and is of superior quality. The forests in the level part of the country are almost all cut off, but in the mountainous regions are rich in the number and variety of their woods, those useful in cabinetmaking being as abundant as those ordinarily used in the construction of the modest dwellings of the natives. During the dry season almost the entire province can be traveled over in carriages. There is communication with the province of Bulacan by means of the road to San Isidro, and Gapan to Balnarte, in Bulacan, and Peñaranda and Mayonloc, in Bulacan; with Nueva Viscaya by way of Carranglan to Aritao, in Nueva Viscaya; with Pangasinan from Rosales to Villasis, and from San Quintin to Tayug; with Tarlac from Cuyapo to Paniqui, from Aliaga to LaPaz, and from San Juan to Victoria.

PROVINCE OF TARLAC.

Boundaries and General Conditions of the Country. Area and Inhabitants, Towns, Languages, Products, Industry, Commerce and Ways of Communication.

BOUNDARIES AND GENERAL CONDITIONS OF THE COUNTRY.

This province is bounded on the north by Pangasinan, on the south by Pampanga, on the east by Nueva Ecija, and on the west by Zambales. The country is level near the sea and mountainous on the west, and in part volcanic, where it is calcerous, argillaceous, sandy, and capped with loam; and on the west of the mountain chain of Zambales calcareous and fossiliferous, having considerable elevation above the level of the sea.

AREA AND INHABITANTS.

The province has an area of 2,277 square kilometers, and a registered population of 89,339. The inhabitants, for the greater part, belong to the same races as those in Pangasinan and Pampanga.

TOWNS.

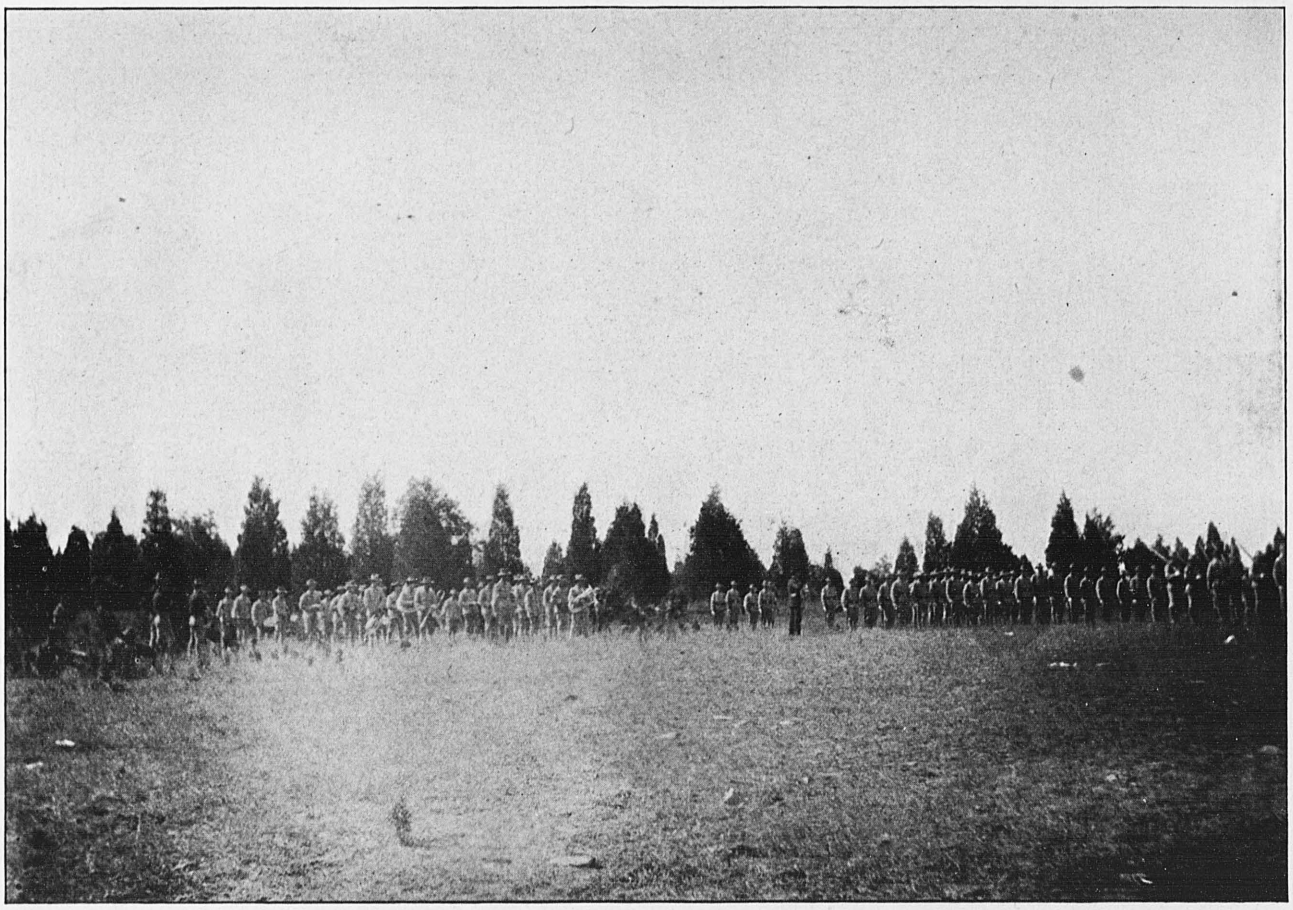
The capital is Tarlac, situated not far from the source of the river of this name, a branch of the Agno. It has a population of 12,700. The towns of most importance are: Paniqui, on the right bank of the river Agno, with 11,200 inhabitants; Gerona, to the north of Tarlac, with 9,600; Victoria, to the northeast of Tarlac, near Lake Canaren, with 12,645; LaPaz, near the Rio Chico de la Pampanga, to the southeast of Tarlac, with 1,721; Concepcion, to the south of Tarlac, with 18,671, and Capas, near to Concepcion, with about 3,865 inhabitants. San Miguel de Camiligg, Santa Ignacia, and Mariones are towns situated between the Tarlac River and the mountain chain of Zambales, and are well populated, especially San Miguel, which, according to some authors, has a population of 18,000. The total number of towns is 17, and of villages, 59.

LANGUAGES.

Pampanga is spoken in the south and Pangasinan in the north. In the vicinity of Gerona, Ilocano is spoken a great deal.

PRODUCTS, INDUSTRY, COMMERCE, AND WAYS OF COMMUNICATION.

This province contains forest wealth of a great deal of importance, and very easy to utilize, on account of the proximity of the rivers to the forests containing useful trees. La Paz and Concepcion contain more than 150 square kilometers of very valuable woods, such as narra, acle, ambiongo, juyo, ipil, and others. Near the mountain towns of Camiling and Morriones, near the mountain chain of Zambeles, there is an abundance of molave and other building woods. Agricultural products form the principal richness of this province, the most important being rice. Next in importance comes sugar, above all in the vicinity of Concepcion. The main road of the north traverses the province from north to south, branching toward the principal towns. The railroad traverses the country also, almost parallel to the road, passing through the towns of Bamban, Capas, Tarlac, Gerona, Paniqui, and Moncada. The province is connected with Nueva Ecija by the road from Concepcion to Arayan, that from Tarlac to San Vicinte, that from Victoria to San Juan de Guimba, and that from Paniqui to Cayapo. It is connected with Pangasinan by the road from Paniqui to Bayambong, by both the road and the railroad; by the latter from Camiling to Mangatorem and Bayambong; and with Pampanga by the railroad and the wagon road from Capas and Concepcion to Masapinit.



Guard Mount at Camp Egbert—2d Infantry, Col. Henry T. Dechert

PROVINCE OF PANPANGA.

BOUNDARIES AND GENERAL CONDITIONS OF THE COUNTRY.

This province is bounded on the north by Tarlac and Nueva Ecija, on the south by the bay of Manila and the province of Bataan, on the east by the province of Bulacan, and on the west by Zambales. The country is mountainous in the western part and near the boundary of Zambales, where, besides the dividing range, is that of Mabanga, just east of Porac. There are other mountain groups to the east of Magalang, near the boundary of Tarlac. The central part of the province is flat. To the south is a multitude of canals and estuaries, which may be seen in detail in map No. 25 of the Atlas of the Philippines.

THIRD BRIGADE NEWS

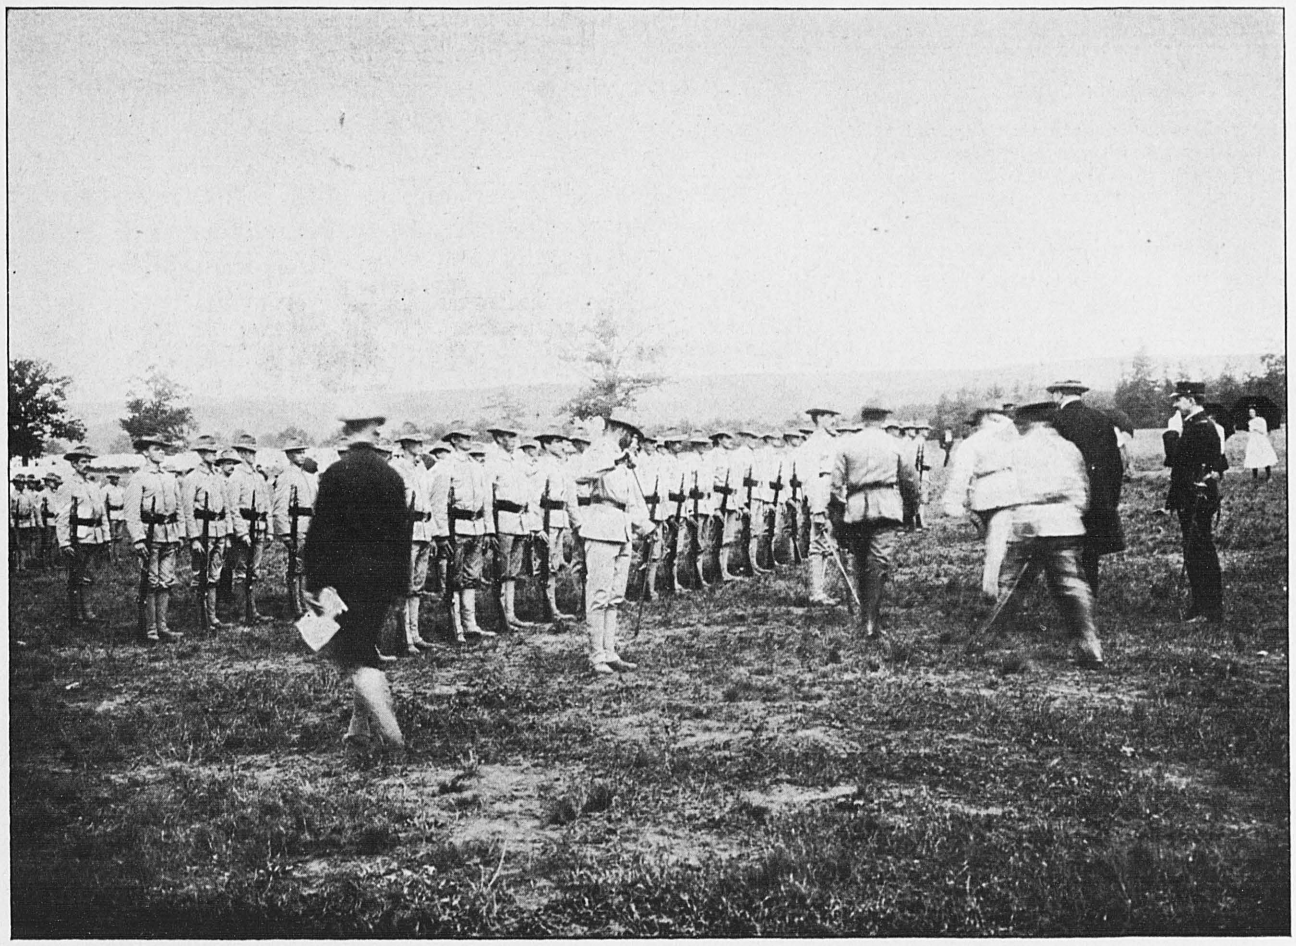
The Twelfth Regiment has two physicians on its hospital corps in addition to the three surgeons assigned to its medical department.

Col. Theodore F. Hoffman, commanding the Eighth Regiment, has been granted a pension of $30 per month for heart disease, the result of rheumatism contracted in the volunteer service.

The Ninth Regiment added fresh laurels to its record at the encampment. The regiment that ranks higher than it this year will have the satisfaction of knowing that it has had a hard fight for the place.

Captain Bean's battery was in excellent shape. Because of the ducking it received the night before its inspection it was inspected in blue uniforms. The uniforms, which were worn for the first time at the spring inspection had not been worn since that night and were practically just from the arsenal.

The inspection drills were given to good advantage at Camp Magee. The regimental drills were given on the big parade ground, the extended order problem was to capture the reservoir on the hill and the outpost duty was to hold the ridge back of Brigade headquarters against an enemy across the lake.



Governor Stone and Adjutant Gen. Stewart inspecting 13th Infantry, Camp Magee

The Governor's Troop rode to and from camp, as has been their custom each year when the distance permitted it.

Only 73 men in the brigade were absent from camp. The Eighth Regiment had every man present.

Major "Bob" Magee and Major Frank L. Hutton were visitors to the camp. Both had served on the Brigade staff.

The familiar figure of Chaplain Eberle, of the Eighth, was greeted with enthusiasm by the boys. The veteran Chaplain is known to the whole brigade.

The camp was named after the late Brig. Gen. Frank J. Magee, who commanded the brigade during General Gobin's absence in the volunteer service.

Major Inglis had the Third Brigade crack shot medal and the skirmish medal which will be shot for in the State matches, in camp, and exhibited them to those interested.

The review given the Governor turned out to be a most unpleasant affair. Just as the march past began rain commenced falling. Before the leading regiment was past the Governor it was pouring. But the lines never faltered and could not have been better if the sun had been shining.

The Twelfth Regiment is indignant over the way in which its baggage was handled by the railroads after the encampment. The railroads refused to send the baggage out with the troop train, but sent it along as freight on regular trains. The regiment broke camp Saturday morning. The big mess tents and other canvas was wet from Friday's rains. Some of the personal baggage of the men and some of the canvas uniforms were also wet from the same cause when loaded on the cars. The Williamsport companies received their baggage cars on Monday and the other companies received theirs on Wednesday and Thursday. As a result many of the mess tents are mildewed and rotted and considerable of the other baggage was mouldy and damaged. The loss to the companies will be from $100 to $200 each.

FOR the information of honorably discharged soldiers of our State seeking admission to the Army and Navy General Hospital at Hot Springs, Arkansas, we herewith publish a copy of general orders, No. 60, Headquarters of the Army, September 3, 1892, relating to this Institution. The said hospital shall continue to be known as The Army and Navy General Hospital, and shall be under the direction of the Secretary of War, and it shall be devoted to the treatment of officers and enlisted men of the military and naval services of the United States, including the officers of the Revenue Marine, for such diseases as the waters of the Hot Springs, Arkansas, have an established reputation in benefiting. This order or regulation was amended in general orders No. 12, Headquarters of the Army, January 27, 1900, to include "Enlisted men of the Army, the Navy, and the Marine Corps on the retired list, and honorably discharged soldiers and sailors of the Regular and Volunteer Army and Navy of the United States, these men to pay for subsistence at the rate of forty cents per day. Application should be made direct to the Secretary of War.

COL. WILLIS J. HULINGS, 16th Infantry, who is always on the alert to advance the efficiency of the Regiment, has conceived a very unique plan to stimulate the several Companies into a friendly competition. In another column we present a rough sketch of a banner which is to be presented to the Company achieving the highest standard of efficiency, such Company to be known as the Banner Company of the Regiment. The emblem is of blue silk, hand embroidered in gold, by Miss Hulings. The cross rifles are of gold color, the motto white, and the keystone representing the 2d Brigade mark also white. The design is very beautiful, and we are informed that excellent results have been obtained, beneficial to the command, through this novel trophy.

A correspondent from the western part of the State in a communication says that it is a well-known fact, that numbers of marksmen's badges are now worn by men who never obtained them strictly in accordance with regulations. Does the writer speak from known facts in this matter, or is this simply his opinion? If from the former, he should prefer charges or report this falsifying of score sheets when they are sent to headquarters. It is his plain duty to keep the Department advised of any irregularities. In fact it is the duty of any officer not to allow discreditable practice on the part of any one. If his statement is only his opinion, is it just to others, who, by hard work and zeal do well. To be thus thought falsifying a score sheet, this certificate is too serious a matter to be thus trifled with. I do not believe any officer would so risk his commission independent of its honor, nor should be addicted to such a falsification. Let this matter of questioning scores be dropped by every one till it can be proved, when charges should be preferred against the one so offending, and dismissal would soon settle the matter. Such articles read by the outside public hurt the Guard, in fact every one of us, and nothing is gained by their expressions. False scoring, if it exists, is easily remedied by action and not by talk.

THE funeral of Lt. Elias Joseph Hincken, late 3d Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and 44th U. S. Volunteer Infantry, took place on Sunday, August 18. The 3d Regiment, under command of Major Wm. R. Graham, assembled at the Armory and attended the obsequies in the following formation: A platoon from Company "A," under command of Lieut. O'Brien, were detached and acted as funeral escort, the field music preceding the detachment. The Field, Line and Staff Officers were massed according to their relative rank, the Regiment following en masse, each Company being commanded by its First Sergeant. Thus in a fierce downpour of rain, the Regiment marched to Woodland Cemetery, the place of interment, a distance of eight miles, where the solemn and impressive ceremony of a soldier's burial took place. Owing to the severe weather conditions, Major Graham ordered the men to wear leggins and ponchos. The rubber protection, however, proved a dismal failure, the rain going through them like a sieve. It is stated that the attention of the authorities will be called to this condition.

Personal Mention

Battery "A" will encamp at Torresdale on the grounds of General Morrell, the week of September 21st.

Col. C. T. O'Neill has just returned from Lake Champlain, where he spent a portion of his vacation.

Col. C. T. O'Neill has resigned his position as Highway Commissioner of Allentown, and is now actively engaged with the Lehigh & Portland Cement Co., of which Col. Harry C. Trexler is President.

Lieut. Foulke, Inspector of Rifle Practice, is earnestly striving to enter a strong team in the coming matches. He has some first-class shots and is very hopeful of carrying off some of the trophies.

The non-commissioned officers of the Fourth Regiment presented Col. C. T. O'Neill with a handsome and valuable sabre during the encampment. He is very proud of the new blade.

Captain Vandling, of the Thirteenth Regiment, has established a reputation for himself of being one of the best quartermasters in the division.

Col. Wm. F. Richardson is endeavoring to secure a light-weight serge of the same shade as the fibre dyed duck uniform for Officers' wear. This will compare favorably with the U. S. A. Regulation Kahki.

M. L. G. Harpel, Official Photographer for "Our State Army and Navy Journal," has quite a number of interesting views taken at Camp Magee, Mt. Gretna. Persons desiring these should communicate with Mr. Harpel, Lebanon, Pa. Long distance telephone.

Second Lieutenant Stieff, Company "C," 2d Infantry, has tendered his resignation. Lieut. Stieff has been connected with the Guard for several years and served with the 2d during the Spanish-American War.

Gen. Thomas J. Stewart, our esteemed Adjutant General, is a candidate for National Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic. The National Encampment will take place at Cleveland, Ohio. The delegates from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and several Western States have already endorsed him.

NOTES

"The Billy Goat" seems to be the favorite mascot in the different Companies.

First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, had some very interesting Cineomatagraph views taken during the recent encampment.

The men of the 2d Infantry are anxiously looking forward to the proposed Brooklyn trip. The date has not yet been definitely decided upon, but it will probably be some time in November.

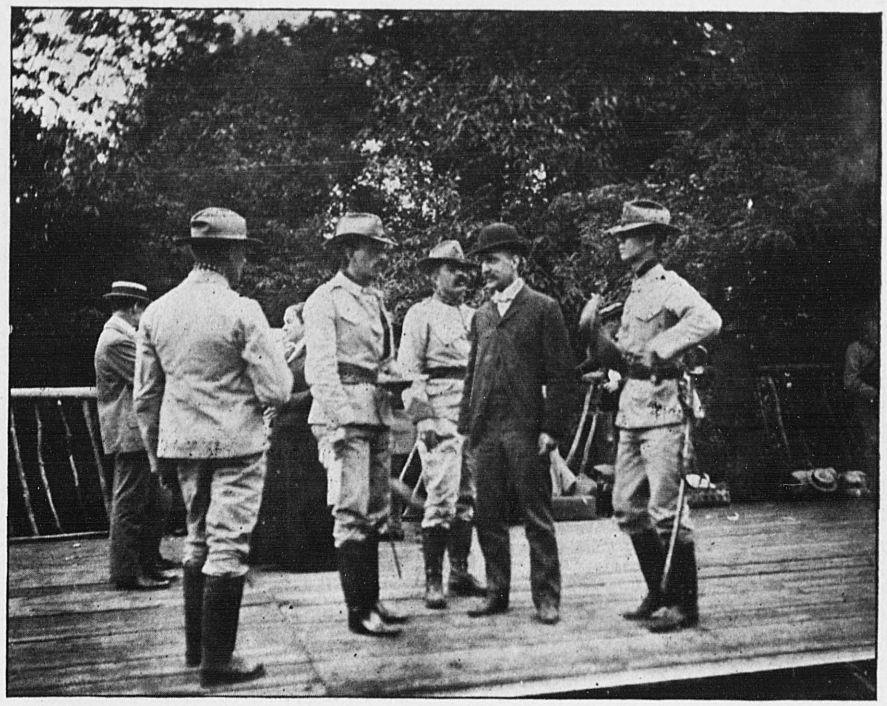
The officers of the Second are loud in their praises of the management of the Quartermaster Department at the recent encampment. Captain Steinbach, Regimental Quartermaster, deserves great credit for the efficient manner in which he conducted this important department.

A rumor has been going the "rounds" for several weeks past, that a Provisional Battalion comprised of one Company from each Brigade and possibly the First Troop, Philadelphia City Cavalry, would act as a Guard of Honor to Gov. Stone, who will take part in the ceremonies incidental to Pennsylvania Day at the Pan-American, the latter part of September. While it has been definitely settled that the Governor will be accompanied by his Staff on this occasion, no official consideration has been given a Provisional Battalion project. Should the authorities decide to send an escort of this kind, it is more than likely that a Battalion of the 16th Infantry, which is located nearest to Buffalo, would be detailed for that duty.

Capt. Lewis Merriam, retired, 4th Infantry, thinks the Federal Government should organize the State troops into a U. S. Reserve Force, and should supply its entire equipment. In this manner, the various State and City appropriations would prove a greater benefit to the several commands, especially in the way of building Armories. The general opinion prevails in the Army, that the National Guard of to-day is a compact business-like organization, and its relations should be closer to the Government. Were it not for the Guard of the several States, Uncle Sam would require a standing Army of at least 200,000 soldiers.

EIGHTEENTH REGIMENT NOTES

Col. Rutledge is advocating the changing of the hour of Guard Mounting, in the present camp routine to 1.30 P. M. This hour has many claims and advantages. It increases the number of men available for morning drills and this most interesting ceremony is not such an early hour as to bring a multitude of visitors into camp in the early morning before the regular police and fatigue duties are completed. Mothers, sisters and sweethearts, women all, seem to forget that men require some time to look after their own personal comforts. These are little matters that every officer and man, with every consideration for those dear ones, will have to admit has a most undesirable feature of our summer encampments.



Mr. A. D. Smith, Gen'l Supt. C. & L. R. R., Col. Dougherty and Lt. Hoffman in conversa ion at Mt. Gretna Station

The commanding officer of this regiment is determined to increase the efficiency of his officers. With that object in view, he has published a long list of questions for Commissioned Officers, and another set for non-commissioned. These are to be answered in writing. Hereafter no soldier can be appointed as a non-commissioned officer who has not passed a written examination on the questions asked.

Battalion Drill, Battalion School and non-Commissioned Officers' School constitute the weekly routine of every company in the regiment. Absence from these drills or schools must be satisfactorily explained.

In the new order of things, the Battalion Adjutants are learning that there is plenty of good hard work for them to do. Three evenings each week are required to comply with Regimental orders.

On July 14th, Company "A" re-elected their old Captain, Charles H. Roessing. Captain Roessing was Captain of this Company for ten years; was elected Major but declined to accept. This was after the return of the Regiment from the volunteer service. He was then appointed by President McKinley as First Lieutenant in the 42d Infantry, from which organization he has just been mustered out. During his former incumbency as Captain, his Company stood first for many years, and his return is welcomed by all who have the interests of this old Regiment at heart.

September 5th will be the 70th birthday of this Regiment. No definite plans have been outlined for the observance of the day, but within a short time something will be done.

The Regimental Adjutant has presented to each Company a beautifully engrossed copy of the motto of the organization, "Spectemur Agendo" (let us be known by our deeds). They are framed and find a conspicuous place on the walls of the Company rooms.

"An Armory" seems to this Regiment as only a soldier's dream, especially such a dream as he would have after a diet of hard tack and water (?). Put out on the street, scattered over the city, in four different places, that want of better names we are obliged to call Barracks. The Armory Commission that secured a 99 year lease on a magnificently located grounds have about given up their task. Only about $165,000 of a necessary $300,000 was raised. The Eighteenth will not be long without a house now. They will undertake to build an armory of their own.

Adjutant Eggers is busily engaged in compiling a complete card index of the Regiment, showing a complete record of every officer and man who was in at the time of being mustered into the United States service and who has since joined. This record includes the usual description of the enlistment, revolver and rifle scores for each year; record of Uuited States service and of riot service, and dates of all appointments and promotions. The cards of those who were in the United States service are pink and the others white, so that when the cards are filed as discharged or resigned, the two colors will always show the creditable record.

The Philippine Commission speaks of the Filipino Indian as follows:

The Filipino Indian is observing and endowed with great talent for imitation. If for serious undertaking and profound intellectual investigation he has neither liking or aptitude above the ordinary, yet he shows himself skilled in the exercise of various arts and industries. In general, he is apt in all kinds of manual labor, and in those kinds involving imitation he has no equal. He is very able in all mechanical arts. He imitates everything and adapts himself to everything, but seldom ever applies himself to anything, nor does he show an interest in perfecting himself, being in fact usually without the necessary means for so doing. Nevertheless he works silver extremely well, and carves wood admirably, with the few and worn-out tools which he employs. Those who profit by the direction of European masters have better tools and produce better results. The Indian is extremely fond of music, and in a short time learns how to play any sort of an instrument, but some of the bands, which are indispensable and exist in every town of the Philippines, are poor because of their lack of knowledge of principles, and many of them play by ear without understanding a single note.

The women are diligent and industrious. Their inclination to commerce and small industries is marked, and they have exceptional ability for weaving, embroidering, and lace making, producing work equal to or better than that of Europe.

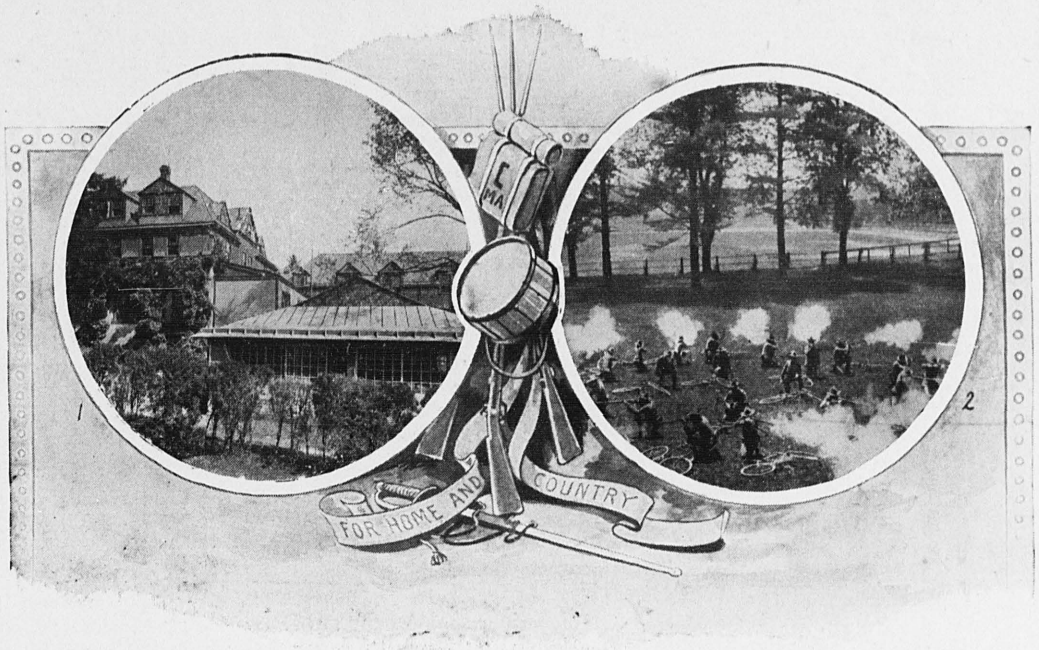
"AN IDEAL SCHOOL IN AN IDEAL LOCATION"



CHELTENHAM MILITARY ACADEMY, on the summit of the Chelten Hills near Philadelphia, has a location and environment rarely equaled for beauty and healthfulness. The School was founded twenty-eight years ago by the late Rev. Samuel Clements, D. D., and from its opening has had the best class of patronage and has met with unusual success in the training and education of young men and boys. A majority of its graduates enter leading colleges or scientific schools, and for the past six years its annual representation in such institutions has been equal to one-half the attendance of the school.

Among the features that have contributed to the success and popularity of the Academy, the following will at once commend themselves to judicious parents: 1. The attendance is limited to seventy boarding pupils, in order that the classes may not be so large as to render attention to the individual pupil inconvenient or impossible. 2. Ten resident instructors (an average of one for every seven cadets), selected for their ability and experience and for their willingness to take an interest in the welfare and happiness of the pupils. 3. An honest endeavor to train and educate the whole boy rather than to merely prepare him to pass college entrance examinations. 4. The moral tone and influence of the institution.

Parents seeking the right school for a boy are cordially invited to visit the Academy, or to communicate with the Principal. Rooms are assigned in order of application.
